Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 26 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Slight frost overnight. Sunny intervals Saturday. Mainly dry.

This Evening and Tonight:
It will be rather cloudy at times overnight, with mist and fog over hills. Some cloud break will allow a touch of frost, especially in eastern valleys. Winds will be mainly light. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Saturday:
Cloud will increase through the day with limited sunny intervals during the morning. A little drizzle is possible later with low cloud and mist covering hills. Winds will be light. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Variable cloud, especially along the coast with patchy mist and fog. Some sunny intervals are likely, more especially inland. Local overnight frosts are possible.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.